Memorandum from [] to Mr. McCreight
Re: Security Countermeasures (S/CM) Working Group
Minutes of Eighth Meeting, January 26, 1988

Security issues discussed at this S/CM Working Group meeting included:

1. The use of SF-189, "Classified Information Nondisclosure Agreement," has been discontinued pursuant to the rider attached to the budget bill. The rider states the word "classifiable" used in the SF-189 is not adequately defined and is too broad in its coverage. This rider is in effect for one year. CIA Form SF-4193, "Sensitive Compartmented Information Nondisclosure Agreement," was also affected; however, the CIA attached an addendum to the form to conform with the rider, and the use of SF-4193 continues. The rider also prohibits such agreements wherein Executive Branch employees are prevented from use of the "Whistle-Blower Law." The FBI will continue to use the FD-291, "Employment Agreement," which covers nondisclosure of information as well as prepublication review. The Legal Counsel Division is to review the FD-291 to ensure no conflict exists with the budget bill rider.
2. Presentation by [] of the Administrative Services Division concerned the proposed policy regarding security of Bureau space.

b7C

There have been three serious fires within FBI Headquarters since the Hoover Building was occupied. The most recent was in the Laboratory Division and caused over $100,000 damage. Because of this danger to both personnel and property, the Security Unit has initiated a policy memorandum to Mr. Glover recommending a severe reduction in Medeco and cipher locks. These locks restrict the access of the Security Patrol to monitor FBI space to check for safety violations (plugged in coffee makers, space heaters, and other heat-element appliances), as well as security violations.

Policy has been developed for approval by Mr. Glover in which deviations from the Bureau's keying-by-Division system must be justified in a memorandum and approved by the requesting Division's Assistant Director, the Assistant Director of the Administrative Services Division, and possibly the Executive Assistant Director - Administration. Requests must clearly demonstrate the need for a Medeco or cipher lock where information is already stored in security containers. Medeco or cipher locks must not be used to circumvent rules for the storage of material and classified documents.

It was reiterated, "The Bureau's habit of allowing the storage of classified material under lock and key must be ended. There is no provision allowing for the unattended storage of classified information under key-operated locks. The requirement is to use combination locks. Medeco locks on office doors do not provide any more protection for this material than any other office or car key would allow."

Memorandum from [] to Mr. McCreight
Re: Security Countermeasures (S/CM) Working Group
Minutes of Eighth Meeting, January 26, 1988

There are areas within the Hoover Building designated as Sensitive Compartmented Information Facilities (SCIFs) which fall within the security parameters of Director of Central Intelligence Directive No. 1/21, "Manual for Physical Security Standards for Sensitive Compartmented Information Facilities (SCIFs)". These areas are restricted from Security Patrol and other unauthorized access because of the nature of the sensitive and classified information and equipment located therein.

3. Presentation by [] of the Technical Services Division concerned the threat to automated data processing systems.

Security of Automated Data Processing/Telecommunications relies on the countering of threats and vulnerabilities and the lessening of associated risks.

A risk analysis is a process used to determine an expected loss. Both the threats and vulnerabilities must be evaluated or analyzed so that risks can be abated, transferred, or spread out. The risk analysis evaluates six areas: Physical, Personnel, Administrative Procedures, TEMPEST, Communications Security, and Technical (hardware and software).

The greatest Personnel threat is the insider, the employee. More often than not, the greatest risk is making mistakes; followed by employees trying to get even; to actually trying to compromise the system. Human Intelligence (HUMINT) is the greatest threat to security. The cheapest way to corrupt a system is to co-op an employee with access to the system.
